The Salt Lake Tribune “Swing, sway with Rollins” By Martin Renzhofer

Do you like the bossa nova? Flamenco? If so, then this debut recording by guitarist Lawson Rollins is for you. If not, then maybe “Infinita” could change your mind. This smooth, danceable, exotic journey begins with the first track, “Café Jobim,” featuring trumpeter Jeff Elliot. The nimble Rollins is better known as a member of the acclaimed Latin guitar group Young & Rollins. As a solo artist, he presents a rich supply of tasty guitar melodies. Rollins, who composed the CD’s 11 songs, has also enlisted a host of talented players, lead musicians in their own right who bring their influences from the Middle East, South America and the United States. The list includes Brazilian singer Flora Purim and her six octaves as well as percussionist Airto Moreira.
